In focus- Visit of Hon'ble Speaker H.E. Shri. Om
Birla to Mexico along with a Parliamentary delegation

Dr. Pankaj Sharma
Ambassador of India to Mexico

Dear Friends,

On 15th August, we celebrated 75 years of India's independence. The celebrations this year hold greater importance in the context of India marking its 75th anniversary of freedom. The Government of India is therefore commemorating the rich history of its people, culture and achievements, through a series of events called as 'Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav'; which means elixir of energy of independence; elixir of inspiration of the warriors of freedom struggle; elixir of new ideas and pledges; and elixir of Aatmanirbharta. One such event is the 'Har Ghar Tiranga' campaign, where every Indian citizen is hoisting the Indian flag at home, symbolizing his/her personal connection to the flag and commitment towards nation-building.

I would like to extend my gratitude to the Mexico city administration and the Government of Mexico for joining in celebrating with us the Independence day by illuminating historic monuments of Mexico i.e. the Monumento a la Revolucion, the National Palace and the Fuente de Petroleos, with the tricolors of the Indian flag. It reflects the inherent warmth of the Mexican people towards India and the strength of our bilateral relations

An important highlight of the month was the successful visit of Hon'ble Speaker of Lok Sabha Shri Om Birla to Mexico. The joint inauguration of India-Mexico Parliamentary Friendship Garden by him and the H.E. Mr. Sergio Luna, President of the Chamber of Deputies, at the Mexican Parliament is a symbol of our growing Parliamentary ties. Hon'ble Speaker also unveiled a bust of Late Dr.Pandurang Khankhoje at the University of Chapingo. Dr. Khankhoje was an unsung hero of Indian freedom struggle and renowned agriculture scientist who worked in Mexico. A statue of Swami Vivekananda, the only such statue of this renowned philosopher and monk in the entire Latin America was unveiled at the Autonomous University of the State of Hidalgo. I thank the Rectors of both universities as well as people of Mexico for giving us this space in their homes.

Hon'ble Prime Minister of India Shri. Narendra Modi

Highlights from 'Mann Ki Baat'

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

Our country stood together as Ek Bharat Shrestha Bharat during Star Ghar Tiranga, with every citizen being submerged in the fervour of patriotism

In this month of independence, in every city, every village, the nectar of Amrit Mahotsav is flowing

We had also seen the spirit of the country in the cleanliness campaign and the vaccination campaign

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

The colors of the Amrit Mahotsav were seen not only in India but also in other countries of the world

Local singers in Botswana sang 75 patriotic songs

These 75 songs were sung in many Indian languages

Similarly, in Namibia, a special stamp was released

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

Project Sampoonna is an interesting project fighting malnutrition in Assam's Bongai village

A mother of a healthy child meets the mother of a malnourished child every week & discusses all the nutrition-related information

In one year, malnutrition has been eradicated in more than 90% children

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

Swaraj series on DD National is a great way for the entire nation to learn about the stories of the unsung heroes of India's freedom struggle

It will be telecast every Sunday at 9 pm on Doordarshan and is going to continue for 75 weeks

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

Poshan Abhiyaan has been an important pillar in this fight against malnutrition. Public participation has become an important part of the Nutrition campaign

Tracker has been launched to help Aganwadi workers

In all Aspirational Districts and the North East states, 14 - 18 year old daughters have also been brought under the purview

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

Sridevi Varadharanjan sent a reminder on MyGov regarding the International Year of Millets. Millets are becoming more popular around the world

The United Nations has passed a resolution declaring the year 2023 as the International Year of Millets

During this festive season, we also use millets in most dishes. I urge everyone to share pictures of such dishes

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

My personal effort to popularise millets has been to ensure that millet-based dishes are served to international dignitaries visiting India

India is the world's largest producer of millets

From helping in weight loss to providing energy & proteins, millets are an important source of nutrition

Many startups are coming up with interesting millet-related recipes, making it mainstream

Mann Ki Baat

ॐ

May our young sportspersons continue to raise the glory of our tricolor at global forums

25th of August, National Sports Day will be celebrated on the birth anniversary of Major Dhyanchand

Let us all keep working together for the country like this, keep raising the honor of the country

Mann Ki Baat

Address by External Affairs Minister, Dr. S. Jaishankar at the Chulalongkorn University on 'India's Vision of the Indo-Pacific'

Every vision has its concepts and its assessments and that is the case with Indo-Pacific too where India is concerned. Three decades ago, we made a strategic correction to the East that was responsible for the rapid flowering of our cooperation with the ASEAN. Originally, it was contemplated as an economic measure, with trade and investment at its core. Over the years, India's interaction expanded well beyond the ASEAN to cover Japan, Korea and China, and in due course, Australia as also other areas of Pacific Islands for example. The facets of cooperation also increased, they now cover connectivity in various forms, people-to-people ties, and more recently, defence and security. This maturing of what we were doing to the East of India in our own terminology, we call it as moving up from Look East Policy to Act East Policy. What is relevant for our purposes today is to recognize that very substantial portion of India's interests now lie to the East of India, beyond the Indian ocean and into the Pacific one.

During this very period, the landscape also started to change as we saw larger economic and political re-balancing. Just as India developed greater interests in the Pacific, countries of East Asia, for example have also been more visible in the Indian ocean. Even distant economies actually traverse the sea lanes from the Indian Ocean and Pacific Ocean as part of their supply chain commitments. The economic reality of globalization was that we are not merely more regional but actually much more active beyond our region in the search of markets and resources. This is especially so for major economies whose footprints have grown steadily, often in an overlapping manner and economically the separation of the Indian Ocean and the Pacific Ocean as distinct compartments looks less and less tenable. We are quite visibly in each others' proximity and to pretend otherwise is really not realistic.

The political dimension of the Indo-Pacific has been equally strong but it has actually a very different logic. Simply put, the separation of the Pacific from the Indian ocean was a direct outcome of American strategic dominance since 1945. As the power distribution has diversified in the last two decades, changes were inevitable on this score as well. The re-positioning of the US, the rise of China as also of India, the greater external engagement of Japan and Australia, the wider interests of South Korea and indeed, the broader outlook of the ASEAN itself have all contributed to this transformation. Some of it is also driven by our collective concerns for the global commons. It is no longer feasible for any one country to assume all the burdens. A more collaborative outlook that transcends the orthodoxy of earlier theatres is the need of the day. At the end of the day, this is about recognizing the realities of globalization and the consequences of re-balancing. Only those whose mindsets are built around spheres of influence and who are uncomfortable with the democratization of world affairs will dispute the Indo-Pacific today.

Dr. Pandurang Khankhoje

Dr. Pandurang Sadashiv Khankhoje was an Indian revolutionary, scholar, agricultural scientist and Statesman. He was born in Wardha in Maharashtra in 1886 a time when Western education and events such as the Bengal Partition had brought about a national awakening. He received his early schooling in his native Wardha and moved to Nagpur, to complete his higher studies.

A young but determined Khankhoje had started dreaming of an armed struggle against British rule in India. He also met Chinese revolutionaries including Sun Yat-Sen, the first president of the Republic of China, who stressed the importance of agriculture in a nation's development and this had a profound effect on him. He graduated from the University of California, Berkeley, as a student of agricultural studies in 1910 with a doctorate in agricultural research, but while he was there, he also learnt about the struggle of Latin American countries against Spain, the Mexican Revolution and the Irish revolutionaries' fight against the British Crown. A year later, he enrolled at the nearby Mount Tamalpais Military Academy, to train for his future armed struggle against the British.

Later on, he stepped up his mission and kept meeting with Indian immigrants across the US. He teamed up with Pandit Kanshi Ram and Sohan Singh Bakhna, and founded the Indian Independence League. Soon, along with Lala Hardayal, a Stanford University professor, they founded the Ghadar Party, which stirred up nationalist sentiments among Indians in the US and conducted organised uprisings in Punjab. By 1915, the Ghadar movement had faded. But Khankhoje didn't give up and travelled across countries to meet many other leaders like Madam Bhikaji Cama, Virendranath Chattopadhyay as well as Vladimir Lenin. Alongside this, with the help of his Mexican revolutionary friends, he trained many immigrant Indians and ex-servicemen for an armed battle against British rule in India.

After the setback of Hindu-German Conspiracy, fearing British secret agents, he fled to Mexico. He started growing vegetables in Xochimilco, near Mexico City and began to search for his old revolutionary friends from the days of the Mexican uprising. His passion for agriculture encouraged him to take up a job as a professor at the National School of Agriculture in Chapingo, later. He worked on developing varieties of high-yielding corn and studied wheat, with particular attention to drought- and disease-resistant and high-yielding varieties. While on this mission, Khankhoje met Diego Rivera, the great Mexican painter and muralist, who supported the Free Schools of Agriculture. His work created a foundation for Mexico's Green Revolution led by Dr Norman Borlaug. His research was also used as a case study for Indian scientists who ushered the Green Revolution into India.

After India attained independence in 1947, he was ultimately taken back to India 1955 and spent the latter years of his life away from the public gaze. On 22nd January 1967, a light went out when Dr Pandurang Sadashiv Khankhoje passed away at the age of 81.

Alok Patel – AVP, QX Recruitment Services & Chuy Michel – Global RPA Head, Chazey Partners, met with Dr. Pankaj Sharma, Ambassador of India to Mexico. This meeting happened on the back of QX Global Group partnering with their Austin-based subsidiary Chazey Partners Inc. to expand its footprint into Latin America with the launch of a nearshore global centre of excellence in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Alok and Chuy spoke with the Ambassador, Pankaj Sharma, about creating local jobs by hiring over 100 professionals during the current financial year. There is potential for the creation of many more jobs locally, given the availability of a strong talent pool of young bilingual professionals and an established BPO/SSC market in Mexico.

The Ambassador complimented the Indian IT BPO companies for their contribution to the Mexican economy, especially in terms of generating employment in Mexico. He stressed on the importance of creating jobs in Mexico and encouraged QX to connect with local universities/institutions to recruit fresh talent. They shared perspectives on QX's expansion and investment plans. Specific issues facing IT BPO companies was also addressed.

About QX Global Group

QX Global Group is a global Business Process Management (BPM) company enabling business transformation in the areas of finance, accounting and recruitment operations. They are Gujarat's largest KPO employing over 2,400+ staff across six delivery centres in India with presence in the UK, the USA, and Canada. In February 2022, QX acquired a majority stake in Austin, Texas-based Chazey Partners Inc., a management consulting and advisory firm specializing in business and digital transformation. By joining forces, they will augment their near-shoring and offshoring capabilities by opening new Centres of Excellence (COEs) in India, Europe and Latin America.
