INTERNATIONAL YEAR OF MILLETS 2023

Dr. Pankaj Sharma
Ambassador of India to Mexico
High Commissioner of India to Belize

Dear Friends,

The United Nations has designated 2023 as the International Year of the Millet. It is important to understand how millets can assist the globe in overcoming its problems. Resilient grains like millets provide an economical and nourishing alternative as the global agri-food systems struggle to feed a growing global population, and initiatives to encourage their production need to be scaled up. Our collaborative efforts to strengthen smallholder farmers, promote sustainable development, end hunger, prepare for climate change, support biodiversity, and reform agri-food systems may greatly benefit from millets.

Under Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the Indian government has campaigned for the recognition of millet's significance, forging a domestic and international market, and supplying the people with wholesome food. Millets provide nourishment, resilience, revenue, and a means of subsistence for millions of smallholder dryland farmers throughout Sub-Saharan Africa and Asia. They also have a variety of applications, including those for food, feed, fodder, biofuels, and brewing. Millets have greater protein content and a more balanced amino acid profile than wheat and rice, making them nutritionally better. Millets also include a number of phytochemicals that have medicinal effects because of their anti-inflammatory and anti-oxidative qualities.

The highlight of the month of December, 2022 was the establishment of the Trade & Commerce Council of India and Mexico. Our sincere gratitude to the Hon'ble Foreign Minister of Mexico, H.E. Mr. Marcelo Ebrard for officially launching the council. INDMEX will support the expansion of our enterprises and forge fresh alliances in a variety of industries that will benefit both India and Mexico.

The Path Ahead : India and G20

Amitabh Kant
G20 Sherpa, India

Our nation has entered the "Amrit Kaal", a period marked by our transformative journey to development and social progress. It will also set the standards for a global developmental trajectory. India, now the fifth largest economy and a leading moral force in the international community, has also taken up the G20 presidency. This has come at a time when challenges like rising inflation, geo-political tensions and climate crisis have created an urgent need for action-oriented and inclusive goals which we should achieve in an accelerated manner. The natural question, then is – what does this presidency mean for India?

The presidency of G20 – a group that accounts for 85% of the world's GDP – has always been a position of great honour and greater responsibility. It brings with it the chance to turn challenges into opportunities, especially in areas where national and international efforts amalgamate. For instance, India's model of development has set the benchmark for social progress and inclusive growth globally. As the G20 presidency, India will look to emerge as a bridge – a "setu" – between the developed and developing states for enhanced cooperation. Inspired from our Hon'ble Prime Minister's remarks at the Ball Summit, our presidency will aim to be inclusive, ambitious, decisive and action-oriented. At the core of our efforts, lies our commitment to inclusive growth and accelerating progress on achieving the Sustainable Development Goals in this Decade of Action. The essence of our presidency can be found in the idea of – "One World, One Family, and One Future", highlighting our shared priorities, the need for collective action and unified goals.

The key priority areas for our presidency includes Mission "LIFE" (Lifestyle for Environment), financing for SDGs, green energy transitions, food security and ensuring reliable supply chains for food and energy, and digital transformation, among others.

These cross-cutting priorities hold the potential to trigger actions that would benefit people around the world. Last mile delivery of resources and services leveraging digital infrastructure can bolster inclusive recovery in a post-pandemic world. In this respect, India's digital transformation across sectors, has set a global benchmark. From tech-enabled education to unified payment systems and digital health under Ayushman Bharat Digital Mission, India has created an ecosystem for beneficiary identification and for transferring benefits seamlessly.

Another key element, central to our presidency, is women-led development where we will strive to effect a paradigm shift in how the question of development and women is perceived. Women should be at the centre of development and we need to keep pushing this agenda until it becomes a norm. Reform of multilateral organisations and working towards ensuring financing for achieving SDGs are also important priorities. The constitution of a new working group on disaster risk reduction would be a unique contribution of our presidency. In this working group, we will aim to strengthen consensus over ways in which we collectively achieve disaster resilience at national and international levels.

The G20 presidency is a unique opportunity to drive an action-oriented agenda to shape a world which is inclusive and sustainable, by building consensus for action. Our demographic strengths, our capacity for innovation and our diversity support help in our emergence as a global leader. By sharing our story of digital transformation through the G20 platform, India could pave the path to a global digital revolution. The world is closely watching as India takes on the reins of the G20 presidency to shape our 'One Future'.

India's G20 Presidency

Priorities for the Finance Track under #G20India:

-  Reorienting international financial institutions to meet 21st century challenges
-  Financing cities of tomorrow
-  Managing global debt vulnerabilities
-  Advancing financial inclusion and productivity gains
-  Financing for climate action and SDGs
-  A globally coordinated approach to unbacked crypto assets
-  Advancing the international taxation agenda

Business In Focus

Malini, a Human Resource Manager earlier, would have never imagined her transition into the culinary world. She was quick enough to turn every obstacle in her way into a steppingstone for her success. The last 8 years in this region, led to many challenges, right from finding the required ingredients till finding the right restaurant wherever she went, wherever she explored. She took the challenge of lack of authentic Indian cuisine in the region which was her major motivator. She was passionate enough to cook and serve people with her love and heart. But little she knew that what she had as a passion would become her full time profession, with much higher aspirations.

Mexico finally became her destination where she got the idea of making her passion her profession. Exactly a month in Mexico, she started her home kitchen NEIBHOORHOOD KITCHEN. Soon the taste of her home-made food attracted many office goers, and she started making food packets on a daily basis. She started this venture on her own and then soon she added 2 people to her team because of the increase in demand. This continued for at least 2 years and then she got considerable number of clients to start a small restaurant. It was in March 2020, that she became a proud owner of a small loncheria and she named it as LONCHERIA SUVAI. The restaurant was aptly named as SUVAI which means TASTE in Tamil language. A 15-seater restaurant in Col Del valle, introduced many authentic Indian dishes that many did not even know. Exploring the similarities in the Mexican and Indian cooking styles and tastes, soon she was able to expand the client base which included Indians, Mexicans, and expats from various parts of the world. The clients heaped praises on the quality and taste of the food served. Indian Cuisine had a new meaning now in Mexico City.

Sky is the limit, Loncheria Suvai then transformed into just Suvai, in the elite area of Mexico, Polanco. Malini always looks for challenges and never tired of achieving newer heights. She is currently in collaboration with a new fine dine restaurant where she will strive to provide the Indian regional food with authentic taste.

Restaurant Suvai – Paradise of Indian Cuisine is located at Campos Eliseos 295, Polanco IV Seccion, Miguel Hidalgo, 11550, Mexico City.
